AN EARLY ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS

DESIRED BY THE PRESIDENT WIND UP EXPECTED JUNE 25

Legislators Want To Return Home--Champions of the River and Harbor Bill Are Eager To Pass Same--Opponents Have Issued An Ultimatum That They Will Filibuster Indefinitely To Prevent It Becoming a Law--Control of Radio and Farm Relief Measures Seem Doomed For Passage At This Session.

Senate and house leaders are endeavoring to reach a tentative agreement upon a date of adjournment of congress. They are hopeful that the session may be brought to an end by the last of next week, but there are certain obstacles in the way that will have to be removed.

Representative Bertram H. Snell, of New York, chairman of the house rules committee, called at the White House Thursday morning to hear President Coolidge's views regarding adjournment. He afterward said the president was desirous that congress should complete its work as soon as possible.

Mr. Snell gained the impression from his interview, he said, that the president is in a mood to agree to deferring final action upon one or two legislative matters in which he is interested if they cannot be disposed of without long delay. This attitude on the part of the president, it is said, will hasten adjournment.

Mr. Snell told the president that the majority of the members of both branches of congress were desirous of returning home, but that a few were making threats to keep congress here until legislation they favor shall have been enacted.

Irrespective of these individual threats, Mr. Snell predicted that congress would adjourn not later than Friday, June 25, or the day following. This is the subject, he said, to what headway the senate makes in disposing of the farm relief question. He is hopeful of a vote by Saturday, after which, he said, leaders of the two houses can confer intelligently regarding a date of adjournment.

One stumbling block in the way of adjournment is the rivers and harbors bill, which was passed by the house several weeks ago, but which still is pending before the senate commerce committee. Champions of this legislation have issued an ultimatum that there is to be no adjournment until the senate passes this bill. Opponents of the bill have retaliated with an ultimatum that they will filibuster indefinitely to prevent its passage.

President Coolidge is said to favor passage of the bill because of the many meritorious projects which it authorizes, but it is said he is willing to have final action deferred until next winter rather than prolong the present session indefinitely. He is said to feel the same way about legislation regulate the control of the radio industry, which has struck a snag in the senate.

The president, it is said, has been informed that the situation in the senate with regard to farm relief legislation is such as to cause doubt that anything of a constructive nature will be passed in this session.

There are enough votes to defeat the Haugen bill, which is known to be objectionable to the administration but it is not likely that sufficient strength can be mustered to pass the Fess substitute, which virtually is the same as the Tinch bill, which has administration sanction.

There is no intention in any quarter to press for final action upon the French debt settlement in this session.

MRS. ELLEN S. BROWN DEAD.
At the home of her sister, Mrs. Susan C. Page, in Columbus, where she resided, Mrs. Brown died at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning of infirmities due to advanced age. She was the widow of the late Thomas Brown. Mrs. Brown was a resident of Columbus for 25 years, having moved there from New York City.

Her sister is her only immediate survivor. The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, the services being held at the late residence, with Rev. E. F. Chauncey, of Trinity Episcopal church, of which Mrs. Brown was a member, officiating. Interment was in Green Lawn cemetery.

The deceased was a cousin of the late Mrs. L. C. Butch. Mrs. Virginia Burns and Miss Agnes Butch attended the funeral.

GIVEN JOLIET POST

As one result of the Illinois "pardon mill" scandal and of recent murders and escapes at the state penitentiary at Joliet, the governor has removed Warden John L. Whitman, a veteran penologist, and appointed Elmer J. Green, whose portrait is given here with.

MANY LIVES LOST.

Columbus, O., June 18 (UP)—Industry claimed 97 lives here in Ohio during May, according to Thomas Kearns, chief of the safety division of the industrial commission.

This is a record for the year, excepting January, altho May had only 25 working days. Manufacturing took 42 of the total. Cleveland had 11 fatalities against 20 for April, and Columbus dropped from eight to three.

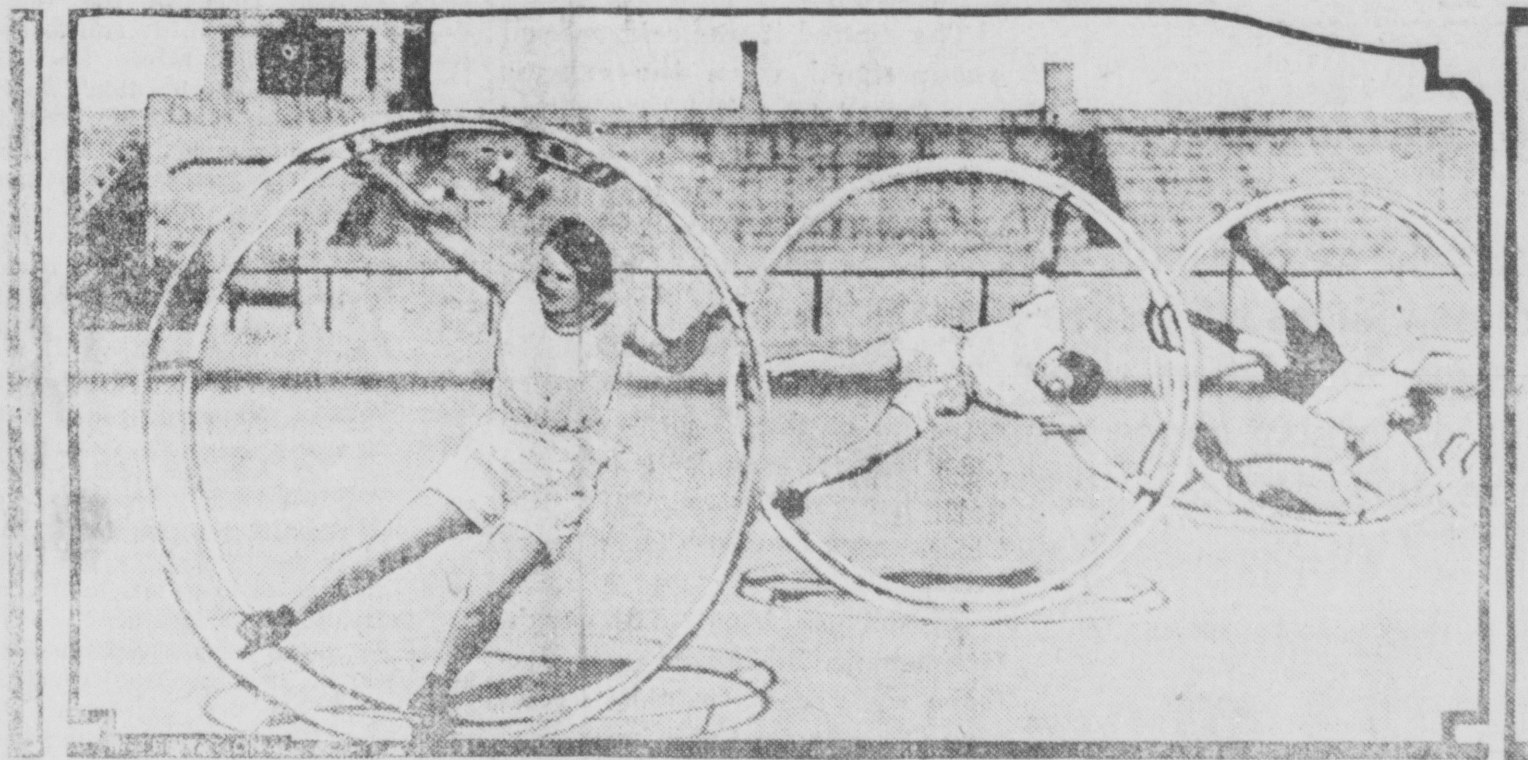

The state-city free employment bureau placed 25,552 persons on jobs during the month but this was out of 50,922 applicants for work, Otto W. Brach, state chief reported.

COMPANION KILLED.

Fostoria —Lester Youngblood, 18 was killed and two companions were injured when their automobile crashed into a standing machine on the Fostoria-Findlay road near here last night.

The boys two companions, John Harriman, driver of the car, and Ralph Corbin, sustained only minor injuries. Occupants of the standing vehicle were not injured.

Columbus — Charging they conspired to defraud him thru organization of "fake" companies, J. E. Webster of Ames Iowa, has filed suit here for $25,000 against B. H. Bussey, Steubenville, and C. D. Stewart, J. G. Fullman and William H. Funston, all of Pittsburgh. The concern in question were "spurious stock-selling firms," Webster charged, adding that he and his friends were induced to buy stock under "false promises."

Bryan — A special grand jury will be convened here on July 19, to investigate the failure of the Stryker bank, this county. The bank was taken over by the state banking department several weeks ago after the discovery of alleged irregularities. The contemplated grand jury inquiry was requested by Governor Vic Donahey.

Cleveland — An injunction granted by Common Pleas Judge Patterson today restrained county officials from enforcing provisions of the Dow-Aiken and Miller liquor laws under which owners of property on which liquor law violations occur, are assessed $1,000 plus court costs of $250. The injunction was granted after several property owners protested the assessment was imposed upon them altho they had never been advised liquor law violations had occurred on their property.

Northfield, —One man was injured fatally and two men and a woman were shaken and bruised when a Cleveland-Akron-Canton bus collided with an automobile near here during a rain storm last night.

John McGee, 45, Northfield, foreman of the Cleveland Trinidad Paving company, who was driving the automobile died early today. The other three injured will recover. They are; Mrs. Albert P. McFadden, 40, Canton, Ohio; Wae Sezik, Peninsula, Ohio; John Madden, 31, Detroit, Michigan.

As the vehicles were about to pass, McGee's automobile skidded and crashed into the bus, eyewitnesses said.

Columbus, O., June 18 (UP)—The reunion of men of the 17th regiment, U. S. Infantry, who served from 1894 to 1902, will be held at Springfield June 22 to 23.

Columbus, O., June 18 (UP) — A conference on rural education and agricultural welfare will be held at Cedar Point June 22, according to an announcement made by P. E. Reynolds, secretary of the Ohio Teachers' association.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken

Various County Offices.

Charles Miller, who had been living in adultery with Mrs. Jessie Schlarp wife of John Schlarp, of South Bloomfield, was placed under arrest at Marion where the guilty pair had been living and will be brought back to this county by Deputy Sheriff Frank Littleton.

The pair are charged with contributing to the delinquency of the children of John Schlarp; Mildred, Catharine and William Schlarp. The children were committed to the Children's Home by Judge Adkins.

In the habeas corpus proceedings of Edna Young against her aunt, Hattie Cooper, in which the former demanded the return of her child, Bernice Jackson, four years of age, the court decided against the mother, and placed the child in the custody of the defendant, Hattie Cooper. I. F. Snyder represented the plaintiff. C. A. Leist the defendant.

CUSTER'S LAST BATTLE FOUGHT AGAINST ODDS

In an Hour's March Not a Man Was Left to Tell the Story of How or Why.

This month marks the fiftieth anniversary of Custer's last battle—a battle that has wrongfully been called a massacre, writes Arthur Chapman, student of American frontier history, in an article in this week's Liberty. "It was a battle against odds—like Thermopylae and the Alamo, but it was not a massacre.

"A veteran command of Indian fighters, led by the bravest and jauntiest of generals," the writer says, in telling of the battle, "went into oblivion. In an hour's march of the western sun, death swept the saddles clean. The bugle and clanking accouterments were stilled. Not a man was left to tell how or why.

"Hills all around and savage enemies. No aid from where it was expected. No friendly cheers from rescuing comrades. Nothing but shrill warwhoops, the fluttering of eagles feathers, the flash of rifles and the stab of reddened lanes.

"Custer's foes were twice as many as he had figured on. He expected 1,500 Indians to oppose him, but there were 3,000 warriors in the camp.

"Sitting Bull, a medicine man, who had led the Indians to break from their reservations, was not active in the fight. The Indians lost heavily, but the total of casualties is not known."

N. & W. IS SUED FOR $50,000

Columbus, June 16.—Fifty thousand dollars damages are demanded of the Norfolk & Western railroad and George L. Gugle, president of the Guarantee Title and Trust Co., in a petition filed in the Franklin county courts Monday afternoon, by the estate of Charles H. Myers, late of 3757 East Broad street. The estate alleges that on April 4, last, Myers was riding in one of Gugle's farm trucks when the truck was struck by a Norfolk & Western train and died 25 days later.

It is charged that the signal bell at the Broad street crossing was not in working order and that the railroad had obscured the view of the track by large piles of railroad ties.

Road Tests Prove Buick Quality

MANY months are spent in designing and experimental work before an automobile is actually produced in quantity. The engineering department must plan a model down to the finest detail, and then build a fleet of test cars to be used in proving that the model will stand up in actual use. Hundreds of thousands of car miles are traveled before any part is considered ready to be put into production. Many changes are usually necessary before the car meets the exacting standards set.

In order to duplicate actual road conditions and to give the car a service test more rigid than they are ever likely to receive in actual use, Buick test cars are daily put through their paces at the General Motors Proving Grounds near Milford, Michigan.

Here the cars are tested in every conceivable manner for strength, stamina, comfort, roadability and economy of operation. Each of the fifteen or twenty test cars is driven from 300 to 500 miles every twenty-four hours. They are periodically torn down and inspected for signs of wear by Buick engineers.

The picture shows a speed test in which a fifth wheel and recording apparatus is used. It is one of hundreds of tests which determine the qualities of the car.

FATAL WRECK

On Pennsylvania Railroad—18 To 22 Reported In Rear-end Collision Near Blairsville, Pa.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 17.—(UP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad today reported that from 18 to 22 persons had been killed in a rear-end collision between the Pittsburgh to Washington express and the Chicago, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh limited trains at Gray Station, near Blairsville, Pennsylvania.

The limited it was said, missed a stop signal when the express was forced to pull into a siding because of engine trouble, and crashed into the rear end of the standing train. Three sleeping cars were telescoped and the fourth overturned.

The dead were taken from the telescoped cars. Practically every occupant of the sleepers was injured and it was believed the death list would grow. Fifty other passengers on both trains were injured.

Physicians from Pittsburgh, Greensburg, Blairsville and Latrobe were sent to the wreck scene to care for the injured.

While Love Kept Watch

By DUFORD JENNE

(Copyright.)

"I AM sorry, Mary," Mrs. Mays said, "but I might as well tell you. Ted was accused of embezzling funds belonging to the estate of which he had sole charge. He says he mislaid the receipts he needed to show what he did with the money. Enemies he has made in the city made much of it, and the result is that he is really under arrest. Then he had this attack of pneumonia. His last conscious words were for you, so we sent for you."

Mary went upstairs to the room where her lover lay, carrying in her mind the white anguished face of Ted's mother. Once in the room, Mary went to the bedside and looked down at the flushed face.

"Oh, Ted, I know you didn't do it, even if you were so terribly anxious to make a home for you and me—and you had such fine dreams of what that home should be," she whispered.

Thankful for the training that had made her a skilled nurse, she began that evening to take her part in the battle for the one she loved. Only for one terrible moment of doubt did she wish that if he were guilty, the kind hands of death might take him where justice as men see it and the hatred of his enemies would never reach him.

Such a thought was only for a wild moment; it was broken by the rush of her longing to keep him, guilty or not guilty, for hers forever.

She sat down near the window to keep watch, recalling the precious memory of her first appearance in the room. He was just relaxing into unconsciousness that had not broken since he had recognized her and had been barely able to turn his head and lay his hot lips on her hand before the dread sleep claimed him—a sleep that might have no breaking. Before his eyes had darkened, he gave one look of love, a look it seemed to her she would never forget.

Mary roused herself and looked around the room. The bookcases were filled with old and rare books for which he had odd liking.

"Oh, Ted," she breathed in agony, then caught herself: "Mary Owen, this will never do; there is misery enough here without adding yours!"

The next day, even added misery appeared. Mary went into the living room after dinner and in time to see that Ted's father and mother had just been informed of some more bad news. She saw by Mr. Mays' face that disaster was in the air.

"Please, tell me—you know how much it all means to me!" Mary begged.

Mr. Mays put his hand on her shoulder. "Little girl, we know, but this is for us to bear."

"No, anything that has to do with Ted is for me!" she said bravely.

He hesitated and looked away, then said quietly though his voice wavered. "Well, as a prosecuting lawyer, a few years ago Ted fought a group of corrupt men, and they are now after revenge. They have secured control of this situation, and I have been notified that I will be expected to make good the losses Ted incurred. You see, I signed certain papers with him. It means—well, it means that I must give up this home—"

"No! No! It can't mean that!" Mary cried in dismay.

Mr. Mays grew pale as he sought to control himself. "It does, I fear. But, Mary, if we can save the boy—that is all I pray for."

Mary went to her vigil in the upstairs room with sinking heart. She went about her duties as nurse; then as she always did, she paused, bent over and laid her cheek against the hot one on the pillow.

"Before long the crisis, dear, and then we keep or lose you," she whispered to his silent ear. "If all this could only be a dream to you when you wake!"

She wandered restlessly about the room, finding it impossible to sit still. She went idly to the bookcases, drew out volume after volume, but none seemed interesting to her—quaint, old, dusty books. She drew out one from which a few sheets of paper fluttered down. She picked them up, thinking they were like other notes she had found in the books, notes on dates of the books, printers, etc. These were different, and she looked closely.

She stood stunned as she read. She almost screamed. The notes were business papers, and receipts. She crushed them in her hands and rushed to the door and downstairs calling to Mr. Mays. He came running, his face white. She thrust the papers into his hand and promptly fainted.

She heard next faint words. Mr. Mays was speaking. "He was probably reading—in those days when he seemed so desperately tired—slipped these in the book. The maid put them away with other books. He had so many books the very hand of God must have led Mary to the right book."

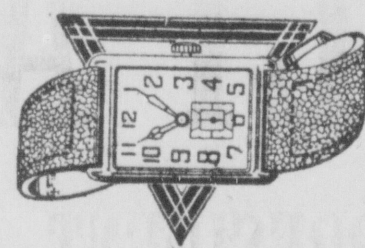

Mary closed her eyes, and a great and wonderful peace seemed to come over the world. Peace it was, and a week later happiness came when Ted, weak but very much alive, said gently: "Mary dear, can't we be married right away?"

She kissed him. "We can and will. You need some one to see that you put things in the right place—and I am that one!"

Hot Water Mines Sulphur

A vexing problem of getting sulphur up from far underground was solved on the gulf coast, when an ingenious mind hit upon the idea of first dissolving and then pumping it. At Freeport, Texas, 4,000,000 gallons of water are used daily in the process. Only a few years ago crude sulphur had to be brought in from Sicily, Japan and Spain. Now 500,000 pounds over that needed here is exported.

Growth of Hair

Hair grows much faster in the summer than in any other season of the year. This is due partly to the heat of the sun and partly to the opening of the pores of the skin, and the escape, in the form of perspiration, of body poisons which, unexpelled, arrest the growth of the hair. It has been noticed that those whose work induces perspiration nearly always have luxuriant hair.

Little Cochineal Used

Cochineal as a coloring is still used to some extent. Formerly it was much employed for coloring wool or silk a scarlet or crimson; but owing to the cost of its production and to the fact that the colors, although brilliant, are not very enduring, this dye has been greatly replaced by cheaper coal-tar products, and for this reason the cochineal industry has been rapidly declining.

Support for Grapevines

The bureau of plant industry says that copper wire may be used to support grapevines. While the copper wire is more expensive at first, some believe that it is cheaper in the long run, as it endures longer than galvanized iron, which is used more universally. The galvanized iron wire needs to be removed in about three years. No. 10 wire is the size which is used for vineyard trellis.

DOLLARS SAVED IF HEAT-LOSSES ARE STOPPED AT ROOF

Insulation Also Makes "Hot As Oven" Attic Cool on Summer Days.

Article 3—The First Place To Insulate.

Most heat-losses in the average home are through the roof. If your roof is uninsulated, if your ceilings are ineffectual barriers—out goes your heat. So the first place to install insulation is at the roof, if the attic is used for living-quarters, or over the ceilings of the rooms below, if the attic is unoccupied.

Roof and attic insulation also mean greater comfort in summer. We all are familiar with the attic which is "hot as an oven" from June to September—the hot attic that makes comfort out of the question in the living-quarters.

Now, what can be done with a heat-leaky roof? Insulating quilting may be laid over the rafters under the roof-boards. Or a semi-rigid board of vegetable fibre or a rigid board of compressed cork, or wood, or wood-fibre or of gypsum may be nailed to the underside of the rafters.

Statistics show that about one-third of the $50,880,787 firelosses that occur annually in frame houses originate on or near the roof. So the roof-insulator should be a fire-stop, too. Again, the cheapest way to remodel a home to give additional quarters is to make the attic livable. So an insulator should be used which will provide a ceiling. That means it must be such as can be decorated easily.

Can all these qualities—insulation, fire-protection and adaptability to decoration—be obtained in a single material? Yes, one of the mineral wallboards listed above is used by many home-owners to solve just this problem. Nailed directly to the rafters as a fire-stop and insulator, it can be painted, papered, or calcimined when the time for fitting up the attic comes. When the value of fire-protection is added to the low cost of this remodeling plus the fuel-savings, it will be seen that this form of insulation actually saves money.

If you are sure you never will want to make living-quarters of the attic, then you can ignore the roof and insulate the ceilings of the rooms below. Rigid or semi-rigid boards may be nailed onto the ceiling joists. Or insulating quilts may be laid over them. Or an insulating filler may be poured directly on top of the lath and plaster between the joists.

Whichever plan is adopted, the insulator should be fireproof as well as insulating and it should be light so as not to increase the dead load.

If the mineral fillers are studied, some can be found which possess all these qualities. For example, there is dry thermofill gypsum, which is a flaky, asbestos-like material that merely is poured in place over the lath and plaster of the ceilings of the rooms below, or between rough and finished flooring.

This material does not "dust." It finds its way into every nook and cranny, and it can be installed by the home-owner, himself. And if the attic walls and ceilings are finished with mineral wall-board to make additional living-quarters, the dry fill gypsum can be placed behind the boards for additional insulation.

(The next article will tell how main walls can be insulated.)

BOY IS BITTEN BY VICIOUS DOG

John Metzgar Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Metzgar, of East Mill street, was severely bitten by a dog belonging to R. T. Liston who resides a few miles north of the city on the Scioto Trail.

The dog which is an excellent watch dog, had been kept tied and it is thought that the boys had been teasing him which infuriated him and made him vicious. Breaking his chain, he attacked the little fellow who was severely injured by the encounter. He was brought to the office of Dr. Geo. W. Heffner who dressed his wounds and who will watch them and treat him for rabies if the symptoms appear.

John had accompanied his sister to the farm on a visit to her friend.

How to Make a Poem

We should manage our thoughts in composing a poem as shepherds do their flocks in making a garland; first select the choicest, and then dispose them in the proper places, where they give a luster to each other: like the feathers in Indian crowns, which are so managed that every one reflects a part of its color and gloss on the next.—Pope.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x x x x x x x x x

No more satisfactory theatrical piece de resistance could possibly have been secured by the popular Hartman Stock company than the world famous comedy drama, "The Misleading Lady," which has been chosen for presentation the week starting Monday, June 21, at the Hartman theater, Columbus.

"The Misleading Lady" comes from the united typewriters of Charles Goddard and Paul Dickey, that brilliant combination of young playwrights who have "The Broken Wing" and several other outstanding Broadway successes to their everlasting credit.

"The Misleading Lady" ran for more than fifteen months in New York, topping all records for plays of its kind. Since then it has become famous all over the United States, Canada, England and Australia, where it met with instantaneous success because everywhere audiences recognized that the appeal upon which this unusual story is based, is universal in its scope.

In other words, "The Misleading Lady" is one show in a hundred because it is made up of those elements which attract everyone, young and old regardless of sex. Competent theatrical critics, when this smashing success was first presented, ventured the opinion that it was a show which would never be allowed to get away from the public.

Ruth Shepley will have the title role and Donn Cook will have the leading male role opposite her. Other members of the company will have good roles, including the popular character combination, William Ingersoll and Gilberta Faust. Forrest Orr will have one of the best parts of his career here, that of an escaped lunatic, "Boney," who imagines himself Napoleon.

Matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. As a special feature, after each matinee, Allen Hale's orchestra will play for a half hour after the final curtain for dancing in the foyer. They also play the same length of time before the play, and during intermission.

Effective But Simple Dishes
Now In Vogue

Something simple yet effective is the housewife's ideal for week-end dishes.

During the warm summer weather, women should not be compelled to spend hours in the preparation of meals, when minutes would accomplish the same purpose. Planning week-end menus should be a congenial task, not a bore. At this time of the year there are a variety of nutritious vegetables and fruits to choose from in preparing meals and the modern home manager takes advantage of them. The housewife plans her summer menus so that they will suggest coolness, while at the same time taking into consideration their dietary value. A delicious cream soup made from fresh vegetables, or an omelet, a fresh fruit dessert, or a custard, a dish of ice cream, or a pudding, are nourishing items that should find high favor in the week-end menu.

The home manager enjoys her week-ends 100 per cent more when she has a few moments of leisure. And in this connection the following recipes may prove an aid.

Creamy Salad Dressing.

1 cup boiled or milk
mayonnaise 1/2 cup cream
dressing 1 tsp. sugar
1/2 cup evaporated 1 tsp. fruit juice
Combine evaporated milk and cream, chill and whip. Add sugar and juice, then fold into salad dressing. Especially nice for fruit salads.

Chocolate Velvet Cream.

1 1/2 tsp. gelatin 1 tsp. butter
1/2 cup cold water 1/2 tsp. salt
2 eggs, beaten 1 tsp. flavoring separate 1/2 cup evaporated
1/2 cup sugar milk combined
2 squares (oz.) with chocolate 1/2 cup whipping
1/2 cup evaporated cream, chilled milk diluted with and whipped
1/2 cup water
Soak gelatin in water five minutes.
Mix beaten egg yolks and sugar, pour heated, diluted milk over slowly, put in double boiler with gelatin, butter and salt. Cook until the mixture thickens. This takes about 15 minutes.
Strain, beat 2 minutes, let cool. Melt the chocolate over hot water, let cool a little, then add the chocolate and vanilla to the mixture after it has cooled. Fold in the stiff egg whites, then the whipped cream.
Turn into a mold and chill! at least 3 hours. It may be chilled in individual dessert glasses.

Another Mistake Exploded

The buttercup is another of those little things, that deceive us by their name. It derived its title from the ignorant notion that, when cows ate buttercups, the butter-producing qualities of the milk were improved. The truth of this has not been proved, for the simple reason that cows don't eat buttercups.

Take Precautions in Producing Milk

Dairymen Adding Safeguards to Protect Material
From Contamination.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Up-to-date dairymen are using the most sanitary methods known for producing market milk. They realize that milk is easily contaminated and are adding to their systems of production such additional safeguards as are necessary to protect this essential human food from contamination.

Such dairymen no longer permit large numbers of flies in the milk house. They clean the utensils thoroughly, wash their hands before milking and even go so far as to clip the under part of the cow's body so that loose dirt and dust that might cling to long hairs will not find a place to lodge and later fall into the milk.

Groom Their Cows.

Practically every farmer grooms his horse; and good dairymen now groom their cows because they know it is beneficial to the health of the animals and especially is it a means of removing dirt that might get into the pail when the cows are being milked. In addition, just before milking, these dairymen wipe the udders and flanks of the cows with a damp cloth. Such precautions are sure to reduce the number of bacteria that would get into the milk.

The best dairymen also see to it that cows are well bedded. They remove the manure often, and in every way possible prevent the cows from getting dirty. Ample ventilation is provided, and the barn is so constructed as to allow as much sunlight as possible to get into the stalls. A concrete floor is one essential of an up-to-date dairy barn because it can be easily kept clean and does not absorb liquids that cause bad odors in stables.

as is the case with those floored with wood. The walls and ceilings of such barns are whitewashed twice a year to purify the stables and keep them light.

Good dairymen recognize the fact that a small-top pail as shown in the picture is of great assistance in keeping milk clean, for while milking, in spite of the precautions taken, some bacteria will get into the pail; and of course the smaller the opening the less dirt will be found in the milk. Pails of this kind are on the market, but any thinner can convert an ordinary pail into a small-top pail by the addition of a hood.

Convenient Milk House.

Milk houses where the milk is cooled, and in some cases bottled, are located at a convenient distance from the barn and so situated as to be free from dust and stable odors. These buildings are screened to exclude flies. Some are divided into two rooms, one for handling the milk and the other for washing the utensils. This is advisable since it makes it easier to keep the milk free from contamination. Ventilators also are put in to keep the air in the milk room fresh and to carry off steam from the washroom.

It is now a matter of common knowledge among good dairymen that unclean utensils may be a common source of bacteria in market milk. To prevent contamination from this source, these dairymen use plenty of hot water, an alkali washing powder, a stiff brush, and steam for cleaning the utensils. They are thoroughly cleansed before being sterilized, since sterilization is not a substitute for washing. This sterilizing process not only kills bacteria but heats the utensils thoroughly, causing them to dry immediately, thus preventing rust.

Steam for Sterilizing.

Large dairies use a good steam boiler for furnishing the steam supply for sterilization. Small dairies use a more simple steam sterilizer or boil the utensils in water for five minutes. Information relative to the construction of sterilizers may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Another important process that good dairymen use in the handling of milk is to cool it properly during storage, transportation, and delivery. This prevents the rapid multiplication of bacteria in market milk. The milk is cooled to a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit or below. The best way to do this is by means of a surface cooler, using the coldest water available, and then setting the cans of milk in a well-insulated tank, the water of which is below 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Other measures that are employed by these dairymen for safeguarding the milk supply are yearly testing of cows for tuberculosis by a capable veterinarian; exercising proper care in the disposal of wastes from human beings and domestic animals; giving special attention to the purity of the water supply, especially that used for washing utensils, its purity or impurity being determined by a laboratory examination; allowing only healthy people to handle milk or anything with which it may come into contact; and permitting no one coming from a sick room where an infectious disease exists to take part in any dairy operation.

Secure Best Yields
From Native Seed

Advantages Clearly Shown in the Fields.

Despite the higher cost of red clover seed produced in the United States, such seed is better for use than foreign imported seed.

E. C. Blair, extension agronomist at the North Carolina State college, finds that red clover seed grown in the United States now costs about five dollars a bushel more than the French-grown seed. "But," he says, "the native-grown seeds are best and well worth this difference in price. Although the French seeds are among the best of the foreign seeds brought into the United States, our native seeds have several advantages over them. These advantages do not show so much in a test for germination and purity, but they do appear in the field."

For instance, Mr. Blair states that

AMUSEMENTS

If you have just had your face lifted and are afraid to smile, don't go near the Met theater this week.

But, if your system needs a shake up, there's a remedy for you in Larry Semon's newest comedy hit, "Stop, Look and Listen." The title suggests a nap in front of a grade crossing, but there are no laugh stops in the picture. It's a riot of fun, and it will furnish chuckles for you when you're worrying about next year's vacation.

Why he ever picked on the role of bank clerk for a laugh promoter is just one of the oddities of the motion picture profession. There isn't a soberer class of individual extant. But this droll youth that Semon portrays has a brand of humor that would stop any show. Imagine a small town bank clerk, whose life ambition is to marry a certain pretty school teacher and settle down and raise chickens, raising Cain with a lot of chorus beauties of a stranded New York stage troupe and you can see action looming in the offing.

And the action develops in rapid fire order. It is fast and furious, with laughs all over the place. It dispels gloom as a sun ray absorbs rain drops. It offers a tonic for all, whether you believe in the adage, "laugh and grow fat, or not. You're just as apt to laugh off a few pounds."

Dorothy Dwan, the pretty little girl who did so much to brighten "The Wizard of Oz," again appears with Semon in this picture. "Stop, Look and Listen" is Semon's first feature length comedy under a new contract with Pathe. More power to him, for it would make a camel laugh.

Nude and Vile

A teacher in a north Indianapolis public school gave a test not long ago to see how well she had driven home the points on South Carolina's declaration that the tariff law of 1832 was "null and void."

"The people of South Carolina," wrote one of the boys in the test, "would not stand for the tariff; they declared it nude and vile."

Substitutes for Liquid
Lime-Sulphur Not Good

Horticulturists and orchardists who are obliged to fight the San Jose scale again will find it to their advantage to stick to the liquid lime-sulphur or mineral oil sprays which they have used in the past, rather than to depend upon the use of "dry" substitutes. That is the conclusion reached by the United States Department of Agriculture after three years of trials of a number of dry lime-sulphur substitutes now offered commercially. While the value of these dry substitutes, which have been on the market for a number of years, is a disputed point, the department's tests found them unsatisfactory when compared with the liquid lime-sulphur.

The department's experiments include 39 tests with dry calcium-sulphur, 13 tests with dry sodium-sulphur and 11 tests with dry barium-sulphur. They were conducted under practical orchard conditions in four different states and cover a period of three years. Both apple and peach trees were used and conditions varied from a moderate infestation to incrustation. Conditions in the different orchards were such that the natural increase of the scale varied from rapid to moderate.

These tests showed that the commercial samples of dry calcium, sodium, and barium sulphurs, even when used at strengths much greater than ordinarily employed, do not furnish a satisfactory control of the San Jose scale.

WHEN MONEY BEGAN

It is in the early days of the world. Life is primitive. What little trade there is carried on by barter. That is, he who has more grain than he needs trades some of it for meat, if he can find a man who has more meat than he needs.

Years pass; man's mind grows, and he begins to see that some things do not vary much in value. The skin of a deer, for example, always is worth two bushels of grain. He who has the skin of a deer need never go hungry.

A, a primitive man, has three deer skins, but no food. He goes to B, who has grain and trades a skin for grain. B, in turn, not needing the skin, trades it to C, for meat. Thus the first money, or, as the economists call it, medium of exchange, began to develop.

C, because he is a mighty hunter, accumulates many deer skins. He is able to trade them for grain, for horses, even for a wife. After all his wants are satisfied, he still has deer skins left.

D, whose land lies outside the tribal limits, is set upon by hostile warriors. His crops are burned, his home laid waste. Winter is near, and he and his wife must eat. Going to C, D asks for aid. C knows that D is industrious. He knows that D needs help. So, from his extra store of deer skins C lends D enough to trade for his winter's supply of food.

C thus becomes the world's first money lender, the first to have faith in his fellowman.

Later, deer skins were abandoned as money. Pretty stones, shells and, finally, pieces of precious metal took their place. With the development of civilization, what we now know as money came into being.

As men began to use disks of precious metal for money, a new menace arose. Because these disks were easy to carry about and not easily identified dishonest men stole them. The money lenders, first to become victims of thieves, began to build safe places in which to keep their supplies of cash. Other people, with a surplus of money went to them, and asked to keep theirs there also. And thus was born the first bank.

NEXT: "MONEY AND EXCHANGE"

Powder River Rightly Named; 'Water' Burns

Arvada, Wyo.—Powder river is a fitting name for the stream which passes through the north-eastern section of Wyoming—it burns.

During the winter peculiar formations are caused by the gas seepages. When the river is frozen over, gas accumulates under the ice and as the pressure gathers, it forces thin sprays of water through the weaker spots in the ice and these sprays freeze in curious formations of arches and low pillars.

The gas does not make the water unpalatable for drinking. In Arvada there is a drinking fountain, the water of which can be set on fire at any time.

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union-Herald:—James McCollister of 271 West Park avenue, Columbus, Ohio, died at Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, about 11:30 Tuesday night, June 15, of the infirmities of old age. He was born in Jackson township Pickaway county Ohio, August 26, 1845, and was 80 years, nine months and 20 days of age.

The deceased for many years was one of Wayne township's prominent farmers and was a descendant of early pioneers who settled in Ross and Pickaway counties. His father, Nelson McCollister, born in Dorchester county, Maryland, November 6, 1809, died in Wayne township October 15, 1888, was a captain in the old "Cornstalk" militia of pioneer days, and was a son of Jacob McCollister, born June 16, 1778, who died April 21, 1844, and his wife Margaret Young, born June 1, 1783, died July 24, 1852. His mother, Elizabeth Snook Thompson, was born in Jackson township, Pickaway county, December 26, 1817, and died August 16, 1894. She was a daughter of James Thompson, born in Hampshire county, Virginia, October 25, 1785, died November 3, 1850, and his wife, Margaret Kirkendall, born August 19, 1796, was a daughter of Henry Kuykendall, of South Branch, Virginia and Chillicothe, Ohio.

On October 9, 1888, James McCollister married Mary Elizabeth Neff born April 16, 1858, died January 5, 1892, youngest daughter of John S. Neff and his wife, Mary. This union was blessed by the birth of two children, both sons. The youngest James LeRoy McCollister, born July 15, 1891, died August 8, 1891, aged 24 days. The older, John Nelson McCollister, born August 11, 1889, and died May 10, 1920. He married Jennie A. Woodward, December 24, 1919.

The deceased was a member of the Central Methodist Episcopal church of Columbus, having joined same in March, 1920, and altho not a member, was one of the chief supporters of the Union Grove Methodist Episcopal church in Wayne township, near where he resided for many years. "Uncle Jim" leaves to mourn his passing his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jennie Woodward McCollister; his nephew and niece, Major and Mrs. J. Elliott Hall, with whom he had made his home for several years; two grand-nieces, Mrs. Sidney Earl Mix, of Shreveport, Louisiana, and Mrs. Stebelton H. Nulle, of Columbus; and a cousin, S. Turney Keyes, also of Columbus, besides many friends who admired the sterling qualities of this fine old man. His sister, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth McCollister Hall, widow of the late Joseph Hall, preceded McCollister to the great beyond just twenty days ago and stands at the portals to welcome brother to his eternal home. Mr. McCollister lived a life replete with unselfish service.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, June 17, at Schoedinger's chapel, East State street, Columbus. Interment in Forest cemetery, Circleville.

SEEKS TREASURE BURIED IN RIVERS

Would Salvage Ships Lost in Northwest.

Miles City, Mont.—Treasures of lost ships, buried under the shifting sands of the Yellowstone and Missouri rivers, will be sought by Elmore Ellsworth Wenner, who has passed a quarter of a century gathering information as to their location and possibility of recovery.

In the skeletons of these treasure ships, Wenner believes, still remain quantities of the cargoes of priceless pelts, gold, silver, quicksilver and various other merchandise, the value of which government reports indicate to approximate $50,000,000. A portion of the cargo of one wreck, buried for 30 years, Wenner already has salvaged.

Steamboating on the northern waters of the Missouri river began 103 years ago, when a fleet of six river steamers were built under government contract for use with the ill-fated Yellowstone military expedition which had as its object the establishment of a fortified post at the mouth of the Yellowstone river.

One of these, the Thomas Jefferson, provided the first Missouri river wreck near the mouth of the Yellowstone. In 1831 the American Fur company started a fleet of steamboats on the Missouri. Its George Washington struck a snag below Council Bluffs, Iowa, and went down.

The Assiniboine, also owned by this company, was grounded in 1825 near the present site of Bismarck, N. D., with a cargo of 1,185 packs of pelts and robes.

The Pontiac went down with a cargo of 500 barrels of whiskey, 500 casks of wine and 500 casks of brandy, none of which ever was recovered. The Louisville, loaded with whiskey, quicksilver and general stores, went down 40 miles below Sioux City. At this same spot are eight other sunken steamers.

LEGEND MAY NOT BE ENTIRELY FANCIFUL

The legend of the labyrinth is one of the best known of all legends in the story of Theseus, who with six other Greek youths and seven maidens, was sent into the Cretan labyrinth to face the terrible minotaur. He killed the monster, but would have been unable to find his way out of the innumerable twisting passages of the labyrinth had not Ariadne given him a skein of thread to unwind as he entered.

Until recent years this legend has been believed to be entirely fanciful, and the idea of the labyrinth suggested by a cave on the mountainside near Crossus, the ancient home of the Cretan king. Excavations at Crossus, however, have disclosed an ancient palace of labyrinthine intricacies. On its walls are pictures of boys and girls, presumably captives trained in their art, vaulting onto the back of a charging bull, and beneath the palace have been found dungeons in which the terrors may have been kept. Religious symbols called labrys, shaped like a double ax, are also on the walls, hence the palace may have got its name of labyrinth from worship which the labrys typifies.—Kansas City Star.

CRIME WAVE?

It could hardly be called that.

Yet, many a time it has been said that it is a crime to let shoes go too long before having them resoled.

Lots of good repairable shoes are lying around inactive that could be repaired and would give long additional service. This is almost criminal waste.

It is practically criminal waste to buy cheap, unrepairable shoes. —our

DELEGATES TO EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS MET

Priests and Laymen of the Roman Catholic Church Tax Capacity of City.

Chicago, June 16.—(UP.)—Thousands of delegates from every continent of the world were beginning to arrive today in Chicago—a modern-world metropolis which was started from a small trading post by Father Marquette, Catholic priest and explorer—in preparation for the first informal rites of the Twenty-eighth International Eucharistic congress.

East coast, west coast and gulf ports all are contributing to the influx of religious pilgrims who will for five days pay reverence to the blessed sacrament.

Chicago's task of housing this great assemblage of Christians, a body which at the peak of the congress will number more than 1,000,000, already was beginning to be taxed.

Hotels in the loop district were undergoing the change from commercial houses to homes for the pilgrims. Railroad stations were flooded by incoming priests and laymen. Homes of Chicago Catholics were receiving guests from foreign shores who have wended their way here to take part in the religious pageantry.

Chicago, June 17.—The first informal part of the great celebration came today when John Cardinal Bonzano, papal legate, and numerous other princes of the church arrived here from New York on the special cardinal colored train. This was an occasion for a vast welcome from Chicago and from 300,000 to 400,000 pilgrims.

Just as the train pulled into the station—which borders on Michigan Boulevard—chimes in some 300 Chicago churches started tolling a welcome.

Thousands were at the station and along the boulevard over which Cardinal Bonzano was escorted. The procession led from the station to the Holy Name Cathedral where Cardinal Bonzano was greeted by George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago. A "te deum" followed.

A civic reception for the high church dignitary will come Friday night. Final touches have Iowa Likes Bad Actors, It Seems.

It paid Brookhart well to be a martyr.—Philadelphia Bulletin. been arranged for the beginning of the congress. Every catholic church throughout the city this morning was decorated with the papal colors—gold and white. The gilded cross at Soldiers' Field was completed atop the 125 foot altar.

At the Holy Name cathedral the walls have been decorated with the papal colors and along the sides hang clusters of spring vegetation. At the Coliseum—scene of political conventions and other great mass meetings in Chicago's convention history—twenty altars have been erected. Masses will be celebrated in the Coliseum from 6 a. m. Sunday until high noon, the first part of the official congress program.

Factor of Imagination

Joseph Leiter, the Chicago capitalist, said at a dinner party, apropos of the stock market slump:

"Imagination has a lot to do with the rise and fall of values. Imagination once caused a banker friend of mine—he lives near me on the Lake Shore drive—to lose a lady customer. The lady said, explaining how she'd withdrawn her account from my friend's bank:

"I didn't like the man's looks. He was polite enough whenever I made a deposit, but you ought to have seen his black, worried frowns when I drew money out."

LOANS UP TO $500.00.

window shopping" is one of the popular pastimes of the day. We all enjoy gazing at the tasty and attractive commodities on display in the store windows. Good merchants pay high rent for central locations where they can show their merchandise to the passing crowds. The City Loan has selected a central location too, but it stands to reason that we cannot display "samples of merchandise. Nevertheless the money under lock and key is our commodity for public use. We want good borrowers just as the merchant wants good buyers. You know what money looks like—you know what you can do with it—and you don't need to look at "samples." City Loan money is good, spendable money, and can be had in sizable amounts by all worthy borrowers.

Instructions Obeyed

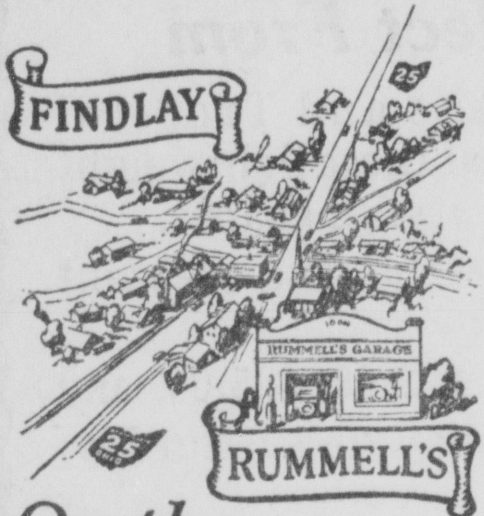

The other day A. J. Stout, superintendent of the Topeka schools, and a member of the board were out inspecting some work being done around one of the school buildings. They went over to look at some bushes planted in one corner of the school grounds.

"Hey, youse guys," piped a youngster about seven years old. "Teacher says you mustn't tramp around these bushes and spoil them."

The two men saw the point, thanked the boy and went away.—Kansas City Star.

On the Dixie Highway Noted Garage wins fame on friendly service and RED CROWN

TOURISTS from all parts of the country pull up at Rummell's when they get to Findlay, Ohio. Hosts of friends have spread the fame of this garage all up and down "the Dixie" and into distant states.

Earl D. Rummell, proprietor, writes of his 14-year experience with Red Crown. Actual tests have convinced him Red Crown helps make friends of customers because, he says, it gives a more flexible motor with more power and easier starting.

He particularly urges use of Red Crown by his tourist customers, pointing out the advantages in the fact they can always depend upon getting this same reliable fuel throughout the state. And it's a fact. High quality Red Crown is always easy to get—at 500 Standard Oil Service Stations or at Red Crown dealers.

THE STANDARD OIL CO.
(An Ohio Corporation)

Red Crown Gasoline and the correct grade of Polarine (consult the trustworthy Polarine chart) give you a full-powered, sweet-running car.

PLANS BURIAL DETAILS THEN HE KILLS HIMSELF

Chillicothe, June 16.—Leaving a long list of instructions telling about his burial, selecting his pallbearers, requesting no flowers, no hymns or songs, and expressing a preference for a Presbyterian or Lutheran minister to officiate at the funeral, George C. Paulus, 23, city, skilled mechanic, shot himself fatally today.

All health is attributed as the cause of suicide.

After writing instructions on his funeral, he penned his obituary, named the text for the funeral sermon and set down the inscription for his headstone.

His father is a farmer near this city and his mother is a nurse at the soldiers' home, Dayton.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

NO MENTAL SUICIDE FOR NOTED WRITER

The human animal begins to kill himself at sixty by telling himself he is old, and year by year thereafter he steadily thinks himself toward the grave. His faith is too narrow, his convictions too fragile. He turns his own mind against himself, and that mind, an infinitesimal part of the omnipotence which we call God, eases his torment by rewarding him with the graciousness and beauty of death. Perhaps this is as well, for it is simply means that a step forward has been taken and another existence begun. But because this particular world of mine grows more beautiful for me each day, and because I feel myself nearer to its divine significance as each day passes, I have set the span of my human apprenticeship here at a hundred years. And to want to live for the breath of life itself, yet not to be afraid to die, is a long way on the journey to achievement.—James Oliver Curwood, in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan.

OLD CASE RECALLED

On request of the Prosecuting Attorney of Fayette County, Deputy Clerk Greeno is making a transcript of the common pleas court docket of May 1st, 1891, when Luther M. Magg was sentenced to a term of 4 years in the Ohio Penitentiary on his conviction of burglarizing the hardware store of W. A. Earnsworth & Co., the store room now occupied by the hardware store of J. M. Morris in East Main street.

Magg is under indictment in Fayette county for transporting liquor in a mail-sack while acting in the capacity of a Rural Carrier for Uncle Sam.

Edward Magg, his brother, was also sentenced with Luther to a similar term.

Will Morris was clerk and the late John Schleyer, Prosecuting Attorney at the time the Maggs were convicted.

BIRTHS

To Mr. and Mrs. William E. Miller, West Main street, Friday, June 18, 1926, a daughter.

Printed voile, georgette or other sheer material is delightfully used in this frock in combination with trimming of a plain color. The tie-collar and circular flounce are new.

Waterproof Sandpaper

Waterproof sandpaper, now on the market, permits use of the abrasive under damp or even wet conditions, and prevents raising dust when cleaning painted, varnished or ornamented surfaces. Both sides have been treated and the gritty material does not readily come off, so that the paper is said to last ten times as long as the ordinary product.

FEATURING USED CARS.

R. L. Brehmer is making preparations to hold his first Used Car Week from June 21 to June 26 and will be open evenings. Special inducement will be offered to used car buyers during the week. 18juned3.

BEFORE BUYING

A BIG MISTAKE

It has been reported that the Circleville Welding Co., has gone out of business. There is nothing to it.

On account of there not being enough work to keep me busy I have accepted a position as welder with the Mid-West Box Co., where work during the day. I do my welding at the shop of evenings. Bring me your next job and have it done right.

YOU CAN'T HIDE A FARM IN A SAFE DEPOSIT BOX

"How much would you take for your farm?"

"It isn't for sale."

"Don't blame you! If I had it I wouldn't want to sell."

"Did you ever stop to think that you might be forced to sell or mortgage the place, to hand the money over to someone who was injured by one of your cars?"

"You know how crowded the highways are. You run the risk of accident every time one of your cars leaves the yard. I say you, because, no matter who may be driving the car at the time of the accident, you, as owner, will be the man held responsible."

"Right after an accident there is a distinct disadvantage in owning a prosperous farm. It cannot be conveniently hidden in a safe deposit box. It is evident to all who pass. As a consequence, if someone is injured by one of your cars, he's likely to say to himself; 'That fellow is good for any judgment I can get against him. I might as well ask for a large sum.' And suddenly you find yourself sue for $25,000 or $50,000."

Would you care to have a jury of twelve men, picked up here and there around the county, deciding whether or not you should keep your farm?

"Even if the claimant is not given all he asked, you would have been put to the great worry and expense of defending the suit; during which time your regular work is sure to suffer."

"Let me fix you up with Automobile insurance, which will protect your interests if an automobile damage suit is brought against you; pay the court and defense costs, if the case goes to court, and protect your farm, by paying the judgment up to the limits of your policy, if one is rendered against you."
